BANANA DRAMA

BANANA DRAMA

BY THE STEAM POWERED COMPUTER CO. LTD.

The trouble with running a banana republic is the quality of help you get thrown at you (sometimes literally)! I mean, it's sheer jealousy on your part to say that just because the peasantry hurl themselves at me it is for any other reason than undying love for their glorious Emperor. This superlative person is none other than Juan Rodrigues LVII. Me. I am democratically elected to power on December 31st each year (at 12 p.m. precisely; a great family tradition). I am always supported in this by my trusted brother, or should I say, my trusted and much-loved-by-the-people Generalissimo Juan Domingues LVII, leader of our glorious army. For all my devotion to the people, though, I am surrounded by malcontents who only seem to want more of everything I haven't got (yet.) I listen to the people. I give the people what they want. For instance, the other day a peasant cried 'Give me liberty or death', and I gave in to his demands: the funeral is on Thursday.

So, you think you're smart? You think you could do better than the greatest Emperor who ever lived (or died). Out of sheer generosity I'll give you this advice: all dictators must die eventually so before this happens put a little money away for a rainy day (Swiss banks are very accommodating).
